(iii) Labour Deployment Policies

Intels Nigeria Limited works a two shift system and does not employ part time staff. Work is carried out on a seven days a week, twenty fours per day basis. This is described in more detail in Section (e) Operating Plan.

(iv) Training Time and Resources

As business organisations operate in a dynamic environment, there is a constant need for change in technologies, management style and strategies. Intels Nigeria is committed to promote personal development and team spirit by due training and retraining of its employees, and expects that each staff member receive a minimum of 20 hours of systematic training in every two years.

(iii) Training and Development Planning

Training and development planning is supported by the Intels Nigeria Training & Development Policy, which includes:

- 1) Appropriate annual T & D plans
- 2) Staffing and succession plans
- 3) Recommended training providers
- 4) Best practice procedures
- 5) Reliable evaluation
- 6) Relevant management reports
- 7) Accurate individual records
- 8) Appropriate cost/benefit analysis
- 9) Realistic budgets
- 10) Useful information, i.e. regular circulation of management development topics for personal reading.

In addition, Internal and External Training Schedules are compiled, which are circulated to employees on regular basis and are displayed on the internal website (Intranet) together with other Human Resources and T & D information.

Whilst always seeking to appoint the most suitable candidate, the Company encourages internal promotions wherever possible. Likewise the development of employees' skills and experience through transfers to different areas of the Company is also encouraged.

Appraisals are carried out annually to assess the employees' performance over the last year and to consider the suitability for promotion to higher levels of responsibility and increases in salary. The appraisals are also used to identify any training needs requirements for the coming year. Promotion to a more senior position is subject to the availability of a suitable position. Promotion is achieved through commitment to superior performance and by demonstrated improvements in skills and abilities, through training and experience.

The need to have a deliberate staffing and succession plan of ensuring that Intels Nigeria has at her disposal quality personnel available for present and future needs of the organization cannot be over-emphasized. To achieve this, development activities for employees within the organization are identified, reviewed and improved and a three tier succession plan has been put in place, which is aimed at preparing employees with future potentials at various levels for duties and responsibilities at higher levels of the organization, from junior to supervisory to management level.

Significant sums are invested each year in the development and training of staff at all levels. Courses are run in the following areas: Management Development on core competencies; Performance Management; Supervisory Management; Induction and Familiarisation and Industrial Relations, as well as specific hard skills such as Accounting, Logistics, Secretarial, etc.

Repeatedly, staff are given the opportunity to attend training programmes abroad e.g. in South Africa, Ireland, and the UK (Management Development and Strategies, IT, and Lawyer's Issues).

A. Afelumo

CFE

Training Providers from abroad are invited to train top and junior Management in Leadership and other (e. g. negotiation) skills.

Intels Nigeria places the utmost emphasis on the Information Technology for the organisation and it has invested heavily to ensure that it has up to date Management Information System in place. The Microsoft Navision System, provides significant new skills for the team.

In line with the company's policy on assisting those with disabilities, Intels Nigeria provides scholarships to the disabled and handicapped at Primary and Secondary Education levels, University Education and Industrial Training. On successful completion of their training the sponsored students will be offered training / work placement with a view to full time regular employment in due course.

Also, Intels Nigeria trains a significant number, about thirty, of University graduates and graduates of the Maritime Academy in all different departments for one year. The graduates are exposed to all operations of the company in its various departments and their skills are regularly assessed. After successful training, the graduates are taken over by the company as full employees. Usually, 95% of the candidates are recruited.

In recognition of the important role of training and development in building nations and corporate organizations, Intels Nigeria has registered with the Industrial Training Fund.

Furthermore, in order to contribute to the availability of relevant skills required by the operating companies within Intels Nigeria catchment area, the Company has embarked upon training of indigenes to gain the technical and related skills. Successful trainees are either employed by the Company or available for other companies working in the area.

Intels Nigeria has also provided scholarships to Nigerians of all its immediate operating communities to pursue higher education in various colleges, apart from constructing classroom blocks in their immediate community, all of which has contributed to a peaceful relationship between Intels Nigeria and its host communities.

Intels Nigeria also recruits well-qualified and experienced expatriate professionals to ensure providing added value to the company. To ensure that these expatriate employees get to know the 'company thinking' on HSE awareness and keep abreast with modern developments in such issues, they are actively engaged in relevant training schemes and other programmes to enhance soft skills in management competencies as appropriate.

Intels Nigeria is giving specific professionals the opportunity to attend professional workshops in related areas like maritime laws, labour practice, quality management etc. The company encourages employee's membership of professional bodies and the continuous development of their profession. The company pays for appropriate membership fees and for attendance at annual conferences. The company has spread its training schemes over all different departments to enable supervisors to attend training programmes for the improvement of their skills in their field like administration, accounts, human resources, marketing, procurement, etc.

(v) Succession Planning

Staffing and Succession Plan

Intels Nigeria Limited's Succession Planning addresses the needs and requirement of ensuring that a constant stream of highly trained and motivated people are available to ensure the future stability of the Company and to ensure that growth and expansion plans of the Company can be achieved. It also is intended to ensure a positive expansion of the skills and technology base of the National employees is enhanced and increased to allow a structured replacement of expatriate manpower with suitably qualified and experienced Nigerians.

The current ratio of Nigerian staff to expatriates is 34:1. This compares favourably with other similar port operators in the area. In addition it is also reasonable when benchmarked against other overseas operators. The Company will endeavour to reduce the number of expatriates and consequently increase the ratio by the year 2008. For each expatriate position, there are two designated Nigerian employees who will follow the succession plan to receive the necessary training and development to enable them to take on additional responsibilities. The target of the additional positions is that, depending on the level of capability, the Nigerian staff will assume the responsibilities of the expatriate managers within a 5 year period.

The need to have a deliberate plan for staffing and succession in line with Intels Nigeria Limited Training and Development Policy cannot be over-emphasised. Succession planning, along with workforce management in general, is increasingly regarded as a growing influence in determining the success of an enterprise. If it is undertaken effectively, it ensures that the company has capable and trained leaders to guide the growth. Intels Nigeria is committed to fully integrate the process of succession planning in her corporate strategy.

Intels Nigeria succession plan is geared to identify and develop future managers and leaders, to transfer knowledge and reduce turnover among the company's talent. Succession solutions are founded in analysing the areas of talent management and selection, leadership development, competency modelling, strategic planning, leadership coaching and assessment, and performance management.

Intels Nigeria must have at her disposal quality personnel available for the current managerial requirements and future needs of the company to achieve the overall business goals of Intels Nigeria.

To achieve this, Intels Nigeria's succession plan identifies potential succession opportunities and assists in planning future staffing needs. It does this by reviewing and improving training and development activities for her employees within the organisation by the following approach:

1. Prepare development objectives for employees based on
 - a. Realistic and balanced assessment of current competencies,
 - b. Potential future competencies and
 - c. Career aspirations in line with current and anticipated team / organizational requirements.
2. Encourage employees and assist them to

In addition to development issues derived from the above, guidance and assurance is provided for any individual employee striving to improve himself. A three tier Succession Plan (See Table for details) is available and can be discussed with the Training and Development Specialists. This plan, which is used for any individual employee, aims at empowering him with future potentials, which prepare him for higher levels of duties and responsibilities within the organisation.

The succession plan motivates employees to strive for completion of clearly defined career development modules. The successful completion of a module guarantees future career progression opportunities and eligibility for promotion, a strong motivator for any employee of Intels Nigeria, the "Employer of Choice".

By following the succession plan employees can undertake more satisfying work, improve their abilities to express themselves and achieve higher levels of self-actualisation and self-fulfilment. On the other hand, Intels Nigeria has the opportunity to match suitable people to specific jobs, build "bench strength" and redeploy employees in response to changing business needs.

Intels Nigeria is committed to promote personal development and team spirit by due training and retraining of its employees, and expects that each staff receive a minimum of 10 hours of systematic training in every two years.

The Succession Plan for the various levels of responsibility and its module contents is outlined below.
